Early in the afternoon a gang of huskies assembled in the shadow of the shadow of the start. According for the primary to start. According to rumor, they were members of one of the Gas House gangs of Manhattan, who had crossed the river to help Joe Cassidy defeat the so-called Administration force under Borough President Lawrence Gresser and Sheriff Clarence Harvey. The visitors from New York side whiled away the time quarrelling among themselves. In one of these rows a big man pulled a revolver and fired once. He didn't hit any one. His faction scattered in every direction.

District-Attorney Darrin had just driven up on the watch for election law violators. He saw the big man pass his revolver to a young chap, who rin followed him into a fish store at No 28 Jackson avenue and personally put him under arrest. The youth had heavy revolver in his pocket.

POLO GROUNDS, Sept. 8.—It was a noisy welcome for the Giants this afternoon when they met Brooklyn in their first home game after a triumphal tour through the West. In point of numbers the crowd broke no records, and, in fact, it looked smaller than it really was, as thousands were swallowed up in the great new stands, and there were plenty of seats left. The old-timers say that a small crowd can always be expected on the day following a holiday. Be that as it may, there were more than 10,000 on hand to bid the Giants welcome, and they nade up in noise what they lacked in size.

"We have had it on St. Louis for years, and as long as luck runs with us we intend keeping up the winning streak. For Cincinnati, we had no trouble to take five straight from them on their own grounds, and will try to repeat the dose when they come here. "We have to grab every game to keep up with those hustling Giants. They start in to-day with a six-game series with Brooklyn, and it is a safe bet that they take almost all of them, so to keep.
